

CRIMINOLOGY, SOCIOLOGY AND JUSTICE STUDIES

Dr. Eric Fretz, Professor, Chairperson

Dr. Geoffrey Bateman, Professor

Dr. Eve Passerini, Associate Professor

Dr. Alejandra Portillos, Assistant Professor

Dr. Katie Rogers, Assistant Professor

Criminology

Criminology is the critical analysis of crime as a social phenomenon, and it examines how society defines and responds to crime, including social, political, and economic forces shaping criminalization and the U.S. punishment system. The program encourages students to participate in community-based learning as a part of their degree.

Sociology and Justice Studies

Sociology and justice studies explores how people shape society and how society shapes individuals. It analyzes connections between personal lives and the broader social world, applying sociological thinking to understand and challenge injustice and to promote social change. The program encourages students to participate in community-based learning as a part of their degree.

- Criminology Major (<https://catalog.regis.edu/regis-college/program-study/criminology-sociology-justice-studies/criminology-major-bs/>)
- Criminology Minor (<https://catalog.regis.edu/regis-college/program-study/criminology-sociology-justice-studies/criminology-minor/>)
- Sociology and Justice Studies Major (<https://catalog.regis.edu/regis-college/program-study/criminology-sociology-justice-studies/sociology-and-justice-studies-major/>)
- Sociology and Justice Studies Minor (<https://catalog.regis.edu/regis-college/program-study/criminology-sociology-justice-studies/sociology-and-justice-studies-minor/>)